Lioncrest Global adopts APrivacy's secure communication solutions

Lioncrest Global and APrivacy are today announcing an agreement allowing Lioncrest Global to use APrivacy's secure communication solutions. Lioncrest Global becomes the first investment and advisory firm to have access to the service usually reserved to large financial institutions such as banks and insurance firms.

APrivacy is a FinTech firm, headquartered in Waterloo, Canada, with an office in Hong Kong, that combines military-grade data security with seamless user experience on any operating system and device, and through any channel using any format. APrivacy's technology allows the financial services industry to securely communicate and conduct business over its favourite channels, such as email, Dropbox, WhatsApp and WeChat, improving the bottom-line while meeting regulatory requirements. APrivacy's platform is based on a unique and patented data-centric approach to security that acts as a security layer that comes on top of any application.

Dr Cédric Jeannot, Founder and CEO of APrivacy said: "Lioncrest Global's mentality is to always put the interests of their clients first. Therefore, they look for best-in-class partners in everything they do, be it investments, client service or secure communications. We share those values and are very pleased to bring our solutions to a progressive and agile firm like Lioncrest Global."

Johan Riddergard, Co-Founder and Managing Partner of Lioncrest Global said: "Our clients and business partners will be very pleased with APrivacy's solutions - this is truly state of the art, and we are first in the market to offer this. We can now exchange information, as well as send client statements, via any channel without the need for a password, token or login, combined with proof of delivery and advanced business intelligence and compliance analytics."
